Q: How many years ago was the beginning of Tiberius' reign in Rome? From his birth to death, Tiberius was Emperor of Rome for 33 years. How many years ago was the beginning of Tiberius' reign in Rome, considering that he died in the Year 14 of his reign? (The Year 1 of the Roman calendar used in 1 BC ad non-Julian calendar begins on April 1 of the modern Roman calendar, so the Year 1 of the Roman calendar used in 1 BC ad non-Julian calendar ends on March 30 of the modern Roman calendar) A: While there is no specific Roman Year in the original question, it has been answered here as a round number of years as the reference is based on the UK Calendar which was adopted in 1752 and not strictly on the Romans Calendar. Rome used various different calendars over the years of its existence. It was the first empire to adopt a lunar calendar. By the rule of Augustus, a dative plural was used in the popular vocabulary. By the rule of Augustus, the northern provinces were to adopt a common form of the calendar. By the rule of Augustus, the following decades were to be numbered after the Julio-Claudians. In 58 BC the Roman provinces were divided into three groups, and the Augustan reform was adopted by all. The Julian calendar later became in general use, at the expense of the old republican one, and was officially made the legal one. But those reforms were adopted in different phases, and a variety of calendars were used in Rome itself. In a report to the Senate in 23 AD, Anicius Manlius Boethius records the following calendar types in use in Rome in his time: The proconsular calendar adopted in 28–29 BC, with the months named after the consuls and then the numbers increased by one. The intercalary Calendar adopted in 16–17 and in 18–19. The last intercalation of the 13th month (the month called Intercalus) was on 1–2 October 16 BC, and the first of the 14th month (the month called Intercalatus) was on 15–16 October 17 BC. On 1–2 November 18 BC, the intercalary month was abolished. The Julian calendar adopted on 1 October 15 AD. For this calendar, the intercalary months had no names, but were numbered from

Q: How to set a custom message in Spinnaker I have a Jenkins job which use Spinnaker, how can I set a custom message when deploying a new job in Spinnaker, example? spinnaker create-pipeline --name='First Pipeline' --description='Testing release pipeline' A: AFAIK, you can't do that with the spinnaker CLI. If you want to change the behavior of the spinnaker UI, you can look at the documentation, and the issue tracker for customizing it. Localization of beta 3-adrenergic receptor mRNA expression in the guinea pig hypothalamus, hippocampus, spinal cord and brain stem by in situ hybridization. The biological effects of beta-agonists, particularly their influence on the brain, are not completely understood. Since the peripheral sympathetic nervous system receives its main input from the brain, the distribution of the beta-adrenergic receptor subtypes in the brain may contribute to better understand its mode of action. In the present study, the expression of beta 3-AR mRNA was investigated in the hypothalamus, hippocampus, spinal cord and brain stem of guinea pigs. Hybridization with digoxigenin-labeled antisense probes was visualized by a sensitive immunohistochemical technique based on the peroxidase-antiperoxidase (PAP) technique. The hybridization signal was localized in discrete, nonoverlapping neurons of the periventricular hypothalamus, including arcuate and paraventricular neurons. In the hypothalamic arcuate nucleus, the hybridization signal was localized in numerous perikarya and neurons projecting to the median eminence. In the ventral hippocampus, a distinct hybridization signal was localized in a discrete group of nerve fibers between the stratum granulosum and the molecular layer. The beta 3-AR mRNA was also detected in non-neuronal cells of various brain areas, such as the ependymal cells lining the third ventricle, the striatal neurons, and the granular cells of the cerebellar molecular layer. In the spinal cord, mRNA for beta 3-AR was detected in neurons in the central gray matter (laminae I and IX) of the ventral horn, in small neurons in the lumbar tract, and in large neurons in the dorsal horn.
