However, things are changing and now there is a number of handwriting recognition programs on the market. Most of the programs use optical character recognition (OCR), which tries to figure out what character is being written based on the pattern of the stroke. Some programs combine this with optical character recognition with the results being OCR plus handwriting analysis. Handwriting recognition programs in general are designed with no hard minimum character size. They are much more flexible than handwriting recognition software designed with a small standard character set. The main problem with handwriting recognition is that none of the programs I tested was able to reliably digitize handwritten text. This may be due to the fact that many people are not used to writing text in cursive. Another problem that I had with programs that included handwriting recognition was that they were more often than not, working only with text stored in a specific format such as Microsoft Word or Pages. Microsoft Office programs do not always support conversion from their own formats to other commonly used programs. For example, Apple's Pages and Apple's Numbers do not support conversion from each other. After spending a lot of time researching this area and testing handwriting recognition programs, I made my decision based on what I liked and didn't like. I found that the programs in this category usually offer the best results when the text is very clean and the writing is good and comfortable for the writer. The results also depend a great deal on the writer's style and whether the text is in cursive, block style, or some variation. Q: Evaluate complex integral using residue I have to evaluate the following integral using the residue method.

$$\int_{|z|=2} \frac{e^{-iz}}{(z^2+1)(z^2+4)} dz$$
 I know that I must use the function $f(z)=\frac{e^{-iz}}{z^2+1}$ in order to do so. But now I don't know how to proceed. Can anyone help?

A:
$$\int_{|z|=2} \frac{e^{-iz}}{z^2+1} dz = 2\pi i \cdot \text{Res}(f; z=i) = -2\pi i \cdot \frac{e^{-2i}}{3i} = -\frac{2\pi}{3} e^{-2i}$$

Cardiac MRI results influence clinical decisions and prognosis in patients with suspected AMI and non-STEMI. In patients with chest pain and suspected acute myocardial infarction (AMI), both cardiac MRI (CMR) and quantitative angiography may identify a reduced myocardial blood flow, which poses some diagnostic and prognostic implications. This retrospective study evaluated the diagnostic and prognostic value of CMR in 450 patients with suspected AMI and non-STEMI (NSTEMI) in the presence of a reduced flow on myocardial perfusion scintigraphy (MPS) and coronary angiography. CMR results influenced the clinical management in 163 patients (36%). The overall 6-month mortality in patients undergoing CMR because of STEMI and NSTEMI was 3.6 and 9.1% (p
