EXPLORER is a free Internet browser from Mozilla. It is the successor of the well-known Netscape Navigator. The browser will provide information about the web page you want to see, such as a preview of its contents, and links to websites you are likely to be interested in. It will even remember which sites you have visited and come back to them later, as soon as you log in. You can open many different sites at once. You can create a list of bookmarks, or of links to web sites, and access them from any place and time. You can even download and extract whole web pages. If you are on a slow computer, EXPLORER will compress web pages and other files so that they download faster. You can disable it at any time. EXPLORER will be updated to make it easier to navigate the web. Also, users can easily switch from Internet Explorer to EXPLORER. You can also create a short URL that can be shared by e-mail and other ways. You can choose one of three search engines: EXPLORER, Google, and Yahoo!. You can also download EXPLORER to your mobile phone. It has a "tool bar" at the top that allows you to quickly access key functions. There are many different options and settings that you can adjust.
