Q: How to check for a null pointer Possible Duplicate: How do I check if a pointer is null? How do I determine if a pointer is null? I have a null pointer I would like to assign to a value (e.g. 0, 1, -1, or ""). How do I determine whether the pointer is null and if it is null assign to a constant. I am currently using `initialize if(p) p = NULL;` where p is the pointer. This will result in the compiler treating the following as a conditional jump.
