Remadder is a freeware, cross-platform software solution that can be used to find duplicate records in databases or spreadsheets and delete them. With this application, you can identify and process thousands of records, even if they are located in separate databases, on your desktop. Remadder scans each file and compares each record with the others, and lists the duplicates to you. You can work with databases or spreadsheets, and make use of the project management system to specify the characteristics of the dataset. You can save the projects with a user ID or an alphanumeric code that you will use for reference to each project. The software uses text indexing, which enables it to identify duplicate records even if they have different sizes or fonts. It uses fuzzy match analysis for identifying duplicates and is therefore fast and accurate. You can remove the duplicates from your database or spreadsheet, thus reducing your storage needs and operational costs. Important features: * Flexible and user-friendly interface * Supports more than one solution * Identify, delete and list duplicates * Allows you to import databases or spreadsheets * Allows you to save the projects with a user ID or an alphanumeric code * Supports multiple solutions and specifications * Find duplicates in databases or spreadsheets * Can be used in both the server or desktop Evan Riley Programmer for Media Resources, senior editor, freelance writer and blogger 4.0 7.8 Languages: English, Spanish Related Software Ripoff Report Ripoff Report A business' first line of defense against financial fraud is to make sure employees are ripping off their company as little as possible. How do they keep people on the straight and narrow? They offer better prices. This is known as a "price war". Bulkify allows you to input the data you want to save in the registry in order to have them transferred to and from the registry in a more efficient way. For instance, if you want to create a new.REG file and add a lot of new entries in the existing one, you can do that simply by calling the Bulkify.newInstance() method. The utility is extremely easy to use, so we are going to see how it works. First, you call the Bulkify.newInstance() method, which allows you to create a new instance of Bulkify. This instance can then be used to interact with the registry. The Bulkify.newInstance() method accepts three parameters. The first one is the path to your.REG file; the second one is the name you want to give your new instance; and the third one is the operation to be used. This operation can be created using one of the existing built-in methods, such as Open, Modify, Create and Delete, just to mention a few. An example of how to use this method could look like this: Dim b As New Bulkify.newInstance(Application.ActiveWorkbook.Path, "MyKey", Open) This code will create a new instance named MyKey and open the specified path. Bulkify allows you to create an instance of the utility from the clipboard, which means you no longer have to store your.REG file to the hard drive or to the disc, making this file transfer more efficient. For example, a user could make a copy of an existing.REG file and then paste it back.
