The department number is 10 digits long, the employee number is 6 digits, the suffix is either 1, 2, 3 or 4, and can be empty. How can I write a SQL query to ignore the department number, and search by the employee number, and append a digit to the employee number to form a valid search? A: Well, I found a solution by using regular expressions which worked quite well: $number = preg_replace('/[^0-9]/', '', $departmentNumber); $suffix = substr($number, -1); $number = $departmentNumber. $suffix; preg_match('/[^0-9]/', $number);
