Progress on development of cadmium-resistant crop genotypes. Cadmium (Cd) is a toxic and persistent pollutant of the environment and one of the most important pollutants in recent decades. Grain is an important crop in China. Cd toxicity has long been considered an important problem in Chinese grain production. During the past decades, research efforts on the rice, cotton, and maize crops have been focused on improving the Cd-resistant, however, little progress has been achieved. In this review, we mainly discuss the researches carried out on maize, rice, and cotton, and focus on the recent progress made in the breeding, molecular mechanism, and molecular marker technology on grain Cd-resistant breeding. The present disclosure relates to a refrigerator that can reduce temperature humidity of an air-conditioned space, and more particularly, to a refrigerator that is capable of minimizing the air-conditioning of a refrigerator compartment to maximize a fresh food shelf space and controlling a temperature and a humidity of an air-conditioned space to minimize the condensation in the refrigerator compartment and the inside of the refrigerator. In general, a refrigerator is a home appliance that is located at a kitchen and keeps a variety of food products that are to be stored in a fresh state for a long time, such as foods or drinks and vegetables and fruits for a long time. The refrigerator includes a refrigerator compartment in which foods or drinks are kept and a freezer compartment in which foods or drinks that are to be kept for a long time are kept. In the freezer compartment, a temperature is maintained to be

The nation's capital Wellington will use the new startup's Parataxis system in a six-month pilot. The Parataxis shuttle uses over 100 sensors to navigate the public transport system. It can also maneuver around traffic and pedestrians, going around and through intersections, and even go up and down stairs. The company says the vehicle can hit 100 miles per hour, whereas a human driver would be lucky to hit 50 miles per hour. Parataxis, which is based in New Zealand, uses its technology to minimize urban traffic. The startup has demonstrated its technology on public streets, as well as in London, Paris, and Germany. The Parataxis test run is part of Wellington's Northern Link project, which is meant to ease transport between the capital's Aotea Harbour and the airport. Earlier this year the local government also announced a partnership with Google, which gives it access to the tech giant's data. The system allows people to enter their bus stop locations ahead of time via a map app. Auckland, the country 3e33713323
