Source: Rating: Gizmored is a blog about movies, video games, TV, and so on. It was founded in 2013 with the mission to share what we've gotten lately, and what's to come. About a month ago, an acquaintance of mine told me he was taking his Xbox on vacation with him. I've never been on vacation, so I had a lot of questions. I bought a portable Xbox 360 to be able to play games on the go when I was out of the house, but I'm telling you, I had it on stand-by all the time. My small apartment felt way too small and cold without it. I ended up traveling to my parents' house for a few days, and it's great to have a bigger place to romp around in. I unpacked my stuff, it was really fun to see all of my stuff in my house again, but that was not what I was looking forward to the most. All along, I was talking to him about how much I wanted to play Xbox 360 games all the time, and he had no intention of letting me play the games he bought from the store when I was in his house, because he already had hundreds of games on his Xbox 360 already. I asked him if I could have Xbox Live for my Xbox 360 and he said that I could have it, but he didn't know how to get it set up for my Xbox 360 and it would have to be done by a technician. I was at a loss for words as I was trying to work through what that meant. This kid had the Xbox 360, but he was keeping all of the games for himself and I couldn't play them? That's not what I signed up for. "I'll figure it out," I told him, but I didn't know how to figure it out myself. I went online for a bit, but I got lost in gaming sites. There are heaps of those out there for people like me that don't know how to use them. It wasn't working 09e8f5149f
