Brexit: 'No deal' could see 'inflation of bankruptcies', says TD The Irish Catholic has learnt that AIB and EBS have seen a sharp drop in business following Britain's withdrawal from the European Union (EU). AIB has seen a large number of British expatriate clients either cancelling their accounts or leaving the bank altogether, writes the paper. This has had a significant impact on turnover for the bank, which had seen a recent growth in the British market. EBS, the legal network servicing the Irish legal profession, has also seen a drop of 30% in the number of UK clients approaching the company for advice. With Ireland very much at the forefront of those contemplating a "no deal" Brexit, fears over the status of cross-border contracts are often raised. Martin Aylward, the chief executive of EBS, has said that the sudden drop in new business would likely see some Irish businesses "fall off a cliff". Speaking to the paper, he said: "I believe Ireland is at a crossroads, and it is our duty to step up as a representative of the Catholic Church and the Irish people, and to push the case forward for Ireland to remain in the European Union, and for the European Union to remain united. I am a European and I would not advocate for going it alone, but whatever happens, it is vital that we stay together." Earlier this year, the chief executive of AIB said that one of the reasons for Ireland's success, a fact which was not reflected in the Brexit vote, was that the country was not part of the single market. Speaking last year, Patrick Honohan said: "There is already damage being done to the markets and to growth
