Extra Dialer Activation

Extra Dialer is a piece of software designed to help users easily forward the same voice message to a large group of people. Simple setup process. The application comes in a lightweight package, and can be installed fast and easy, thus allowing users to start sending voice messages in a matter of minutes after downloading the app. The program's interface is very simple, though a bit outdated. The tool provides users with a small window from where they can start the dialer, access the contacts database, or set their preferences. The tool runs in the background, but it can be accessed fast, as it places an icon in System Tray. Easily add contacts and voice messages. The software makes it easy for users to add contacts to their address book and to select those who should receive the message. Users can send an already recorded message to their contacts, or can use connected hardware in order to record a new message. They need to head to the "Preferences" window to select the message they want to send. One thing that users need to keep in mind, however, is the fact that the application offers support only for the .wav file format. It also provides users with the possibility to convert their audio messages from a different format to wav, from the "Preferences" window. Integrated scheduling capabilities. The application has been designed with a scheduling function, thus allowing users to record a message and then set the tool to send it at a specific moment. They can also set it to send the message at the same hour every day, for a given period of time. Users are provided with the option to set the dialing device that the app should use, and can also set the utility to record responses, should they want. Fast operations. All in all, Extra Dialer is an easy-to-use app for dialing specific numbers and for sending audio messages to contacts, and can deliver fast performance to all users, albeit from a somehow outdated interface. What's New In?

Users can set up the control panel to automatically log out. When a user logs out of the program, the program will terminate and you will be automatically logged back in. There is no limit to how often you can log in and out of the program while it's open. All of this is done automatically, so you don't have to do anything else to terminate or restart the program. Edit and delete your log files whenever you like with no loss of data. When a user logs off, their online status does not change. If you want to keep track of the number of times a user logged in, just log them in manually. Edit the Welcome message using a text editing tool, if you prefer. Our program supports multiple computers. All users can login from any computer as long as you have another working internet connection. It is possible to define a preferred listing order for your contacts in the address book. This setting lets you define a priority order of the list to be displayed, meaning if you have many contacts in your address book, you can choose to view the most important first. When a user sends an email, the sender's IP address will automatically appear on the email message as sender's address. This address will also appear on the recipient's address list when they receive the email. Some functions may not work properly while the computer is using Internet connections that are shared by other users. Please be aware of the limitations. Your log file can be viewed by anyone on the Internet, if you download it or save it from the Internet. It is advisable to keep the log files on your computer only. When a user logs in, they will be presented with the same phone list and contacts as they had when they logged out. The only differences will be the number of online users (shared and private), the view screen and time zone setting. The program is built to give users a reliable work environment, as unlike other applications, our program does not react to any computer or network problems. This means your computer can be offline and running with other programs for a long period of time, and your communication will be available at all times. If the network goes down while a user is connected to the internet, they will still be able to continue their communication, as long as their modem is turned on. When they log out of the program, their connection will be terminated, but your program will automatically reconnect them to the internet and the communication will
