What's new:

In late November 2012, Video Games Network announced the listing of Mercury's Cross in the U.S. That's great news for fans of Zombie Dragon. After a number of delays, the PDA has been passed in the state of Washington, which has given the handheld commercial device the green light.

"After receiving numerous manufacturers' prototypes, we spent six months meeting with scholars and academics, investigating and analyzing gameplay mechanics, technological innovations, commercial feasibility, and gamer preference," said Zombie Dragon Studios owner, George Rowles.

At least two full games are promised before the year is up. "We are targeting Apple's App Store, Google's Android Market, and the Windows Phone Marketplace in 2013," said Rowles. "We are engaged in attempts to obtain distribution but it has been difficult."
