Liscverb is a VST plugin designed to help producers and DJs add quality reverb and delay effects to music tracks. It displays a simple to use and comprehensive button layout that enables you to adjust parameters such as cut off, resonance, gate, size, rate, width, damp and feedback. Features: Built for Mac: True, designed and tested in Mac OSX; Runs in both 32-bit and 64-bit environments. Can be used in 64-bit natively. Built in 2.5 kHz sample rate: This allows you to run Liscverb natively in your DAW and set the sample rate to 2.5 kHz. Built in stereo output: In addition to the output available for your audio interface, Liscverb outputs panning and fade effects in stereo, allowing you to track your effect easily through out your mix. Self-contained with save/load button: Liscverb comes packed with a function that will save and load up to 100 presets. Not only does this make it easy for you to load back up a set of settings that you've used over time, but it also means that you can run Liscverb whilst your audio interface is disconnected. If you'd like to change the sample rate, then you can do so whilst the current preset is active. Other features: Normal and wet mix: The wet mix can be used to mix the level of the sound with the pre delay. 'HD' mode: Allows you to run Liscverb at 30 Hz, when using a higher sample rate. Damping: You can set the damping to a higher value. This improves the aggressiveness of the effect and can also be used to set up the attack and decay values on a parametric EQ. These values increase the size of the effect. Frequency: You can set the frequency to 200 Hz, half the sample rate, but this has no effect on the sound. Other features: Exponential and Linear time compression: Effectively this means that if you compress the sound 1/10, the effect is also 1/10 so the effect is linear. Altering the mix will alter the amount of the effect. Analog style envelope: On/Off. This allows the effect to be manually controlled. The amount of effect is controlled by the envelope. Gate: Set this up and the Liscverb effect will pulse with the audio signal. This allows the actual effect to sync with the audio signal. The gate will close the effect off completely and then open up. Vibrato effect:
