How to start the package design work in Packedge.The present invention relates to a manufacturing method for a carbon electrode. For producing carbon electrodes, a mordant containing resorcin is mixed with a slurry comprising a graphite filler, a binder, and an electrolyte such as an aqueous sodium chloride solution to form a paste. The paste is applied to a laminated material and dried, to obtain a carbon electrode. The binder is washed out in the carbon electrode manufacturing step, and the remaining binder provides an acid component for plating the metal components in the carbon electrode. To improve the performance of the electrode, highly-crystalline graphite containing the metal components or particles is required as the filler. In addition, U.S. Pat. No. 4,631,117 discloses the formation of a carbon electrode containing highly-crystalline graphite by the use of a mixture of a solution of an organic acid such as levulinic acid and a solvent such as acetone. This reference, however, fails to propose the removal of the organic acid. When the carbon electrode manufactured by the above-mentioned method is used, the metal components, in particular silver are likely to be precipitated on the carbon electrode surface during charging and discharging. In general, a lead-acid battery is provided with a grid electrode comprising a lead grid and a lead plate as a collector. A carbon electrode is used as an active material. The lead-acid battery, having a high energy density, finds wide applications in modern society. However, in view of environment, there is a growing need for an increase in the capacity of the lead-acid battery for electric vehicles, hybrid vehicles and the like. To meet this need, a non-lead alloy, such as an iron alloy, or a high-capacity electrode material, such as a nickel-based alloy or an iron-based alloy containing more than 80 wt. % iron, is used as an active material. The carbon electrode containing such an active material must have excellent electrical conductivity, in addition to having a large capacity.Ave Maria (1cdb36666d
