cinemaWill Ellen Degeneres host the Oscars this year? The actress and comedian told Parade magazine that she would "love to." "I'm a huge Oscar fan," she told the magazine. "I would be honored to host it. Who wouldn't?" Ella Wahl, Degeneres's publicist, told Us that Degeneres, who has been nominated for a Best Actress Oscar in three of her previous four films, has not officially agreed to take the gig. "She hasn't officially agreed to take the gig, but we'll see what happens," Wahl said. "She's definitely looking forward to it." In the Parade interview, Degeneres was asked if she wanted to do a comedy special before taking the reins at the Academy Awards. "There's nothing that I'd rather do," she said. "I love doing comedy. It's the hardest thing for me and it's the most rewarding. I just haven't found the right show yet, but I hope to." Earlier this year, Degeneres said the biggest question surrounding her hosting the Academy Awards is "Can we count on her to get her mad?" "I'm actually not an angry person," she told TMZ in July.

"I've actually grown much more loving and patient. Not that I'm not still super mad about stuff all the time, but overall I'm just a much nicer person. I'm still opinionated and I still push people away and

What's New in the Adobe Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.4.3)?

in a low-density, non-archived format. Many of these technologies, along with new security features, require Windows Server 2012. ## Track and Report The Site Recovery Manager track and report feature helps administrators monitor the health of the cloud by collecting information about site replicas, including what actions were taken, how long it took to execute those actions, and what error or exception message was generated. You can use a Site Recovery Manager software partner to add additional information to these reports. In Windows Server 2012, you use track and report to improve the reliability of your virtual machine replication process. Instead of focusing on recovery in the event of a disaster, you can detect and address potential problems with your replication infrastructure early. When a problem is detected, you can take remedial actions to identify and correct the root cause of the problem. Site Recovery Manager track and report can help you diagnose issues in the following situations:

- * Windows virtual machine replication problem —A Windows virtual machine may experience problems with Windows operating system updates, including the Windows Server 2012 Update Rollup, resulting in degraded performance. Site Recovery Manager track and report keeps track of and reports on these issues. * Moving primary virtual machines to a backup site —A Windows virtual machine may fail during a failed move between sites. This could be caused by network problems, if the source site has no network connectivity to the destination site. It could also be a transient or permanent failure of the source site, in which case the virtual machine could be moved to a backup site. Site Recovery Manager track and report can keep track of and report on this migration process. * Missing virtual machine backups —A virtual machine may fail to save its backup if the backup storage is not available. You can configure a template or type to automatically create backup sets of virtual machines and then put them in a backup storage. Site Recovery Manager track and report collects information about this process. In the next exercise, you'll use a Windows

Server 2012 machine to run two virtual machines and then use Site Recovery Manager to create an initial site recovery baseline. You'll use a second machine to create a second site recovery baseline and then use the new baseline to recover one of the virtual machines. In this exercise, you use the Windows Server 2012 machine that you configured in the preceding exercise. 1. On the host, in the Site Recovery Management console, in the Azure Active Directory tree, select Online
