against President Romney: It's a fight over election fraud, lies and character...and Obama's numbers are going down Tempting as it may be, when comparing the presidential candidates of Barack Obama and Mitt Romney, it's a fight over election fraud, lies, character and Obama's numbers going down? The majority of voters are in agreement that President Barack Obama and Mitt Romney are at the head of of their parties' respective nominees, ranging from 53 to 68 per cent. Perhaps the biggest issue with this matchup is the pair's respective presidential standings. According to a recent Quinnipiac University nationwide poll, Obama's standing has gone down, while Romney's has climbed: Former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney leads President Barack Obama in three battleground states that historically have favoured the Democratic candidate in U.S. presidential elections. The poll of likely voters in Ohio, Florida and Virginia found Romney ahead of Obama 41 - 39 percent. Two days earlier a different Quinnipiac poll found Obama up three in the three battleground states. And another poll released Wednesday showed a shockingly large gender gap among likely voters for Romney: By an 8-point margin, more women than men support former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney, in a new national Reuters/Ipsos poll released Wednesday. Also, President Obama – who is strong with women and men – leads Romney 70 - 23 percent among registered voters. Tax and fiscal issues But to the surprise of no one, the is no mention of the fact that Romney offers a flat 2009 tax rate to everyone when Obama offers tax hikes to the 91 per cent of Americans who earn $250,000 or more, will kill jobs for middle class people, and raises taxes on everyone other than millionaires. At best, Romney is a modest-sized tax cutter, while Obama consistently supports tax hikes, including raises on small businesses and on groups most Americans depend on to provide work and earn money. I'm going to end all political discussion here. At this point, shouldn't our national media guide us to a discussion of issues? Rob Shaw Yes, an example from the Times is on his website. Further, last night, on the Late Show, David Letterman showed an American flag with a Romney/Ryan campaign logo that was used in California and other states on the November 2012 ballot as a sure-fire way to increase turnout in Romney's favour. There was no disclaimer that the design had been
