"I don't want a war," he said in an interview with Time magazine. "That would be a terrible thing, but if we don't make deals with the world... they're going to do what we can't do for them." The real threat from the Trump administration may lie in its approach to trade as well as NAFTA. Trump, the former real-estate mogul who argued for months during his campaign for the White House that Americans have been taken advantage of by free trade deals, has declared his desire to withdraw the U.S. from the Trans-Pacific Partnership that his predecessor Barack Obama negotiated. He has also threatened to walk away from the North American Free Trade Agreement, a longstanding deal between Canada, Mexico and the U.S. If he actually followed through with these threats, a trade war with Canada, Mexico and an increasingly wary Chinese government would likely follow. "An open-ended economic war is dangerous for everyone," said Robert McTeer, a professor of international development at the University of Calgary. "It's actually quite unhealthy." The present invention relates to a heat-transfer printer, and more particularly to a heat-transfer printer utilizing a heat-sensitive ink sheet having a pressure roller. Recently, it has been frequently studied developed to provide various printers, other than thermal transfer printers, as an output device for use in an information-oriented society. In particular, a system of a heat-transfer printer utilizing heat-sensitive ink sheet is easy to satisfy the following demand: "The printer can be mounted inexpensively on the small terminal equipment so that it will not increase the cost of the terminal equipment." A prior art heat-transfer printer has a construction that a heat-sensitive ink sheet is contacted by a transfer heating section of a heat-sensing head mounted on a carriage so that a portion of the ink on the ink sheet corresponding to a heating element on an object, to be printed, is transferred to the object so that color printing is effected. As it is necessary that the heat-sensitive ink sheet be kept in contact with the heating section of the heat-sensing head during the course of printing, the head is ordinarily mounted on the carriage with the ink sheet extending from the carriage in the direction conveying the ink sheet. In order that the ink sheet will not be curled offset during the course of printing, the prior art heat-transfer printer has been constructed to feed the ink sheet by a conveyor cylinder which is supported by a friction roller in a manner interposed between conveyor cylinder and the ink sheet. On the other hand, in the heat-transfer printer utilizing such kind of heat-sensitive ink sheet, a copying operation other than the color printing is not effected and the ink on the sheet corresponding to black is usually simply not heated so that either use of the ink sheet is likely to cause a portion thereof to bleed white. For this reason, the prior art heat-transfer printer has been
