In 2010 Kenya adopted a new Constitutional architecture that places a premium on sustainable development as a key governance imperative and requires public participation in all processes. Based on this development, the present chapter assesses the extent to which Kenyas legal framework for management of wetlands in the coastal region adopts the ecosystem approach and whether it enhances the conservation and wise use of wetlands and thus aligns to the constitutional dictates of sustainable development. The main argument that the paper advances is that both in law and practice, the move towards ecosystem approach is slow and fledgling. The management approach is still characterised by sector specific focus, governance overlaps and legal gaps. However, the adoption of a green constitution 22 and the incorporation of the ecosystem approach in the National Environment Policy in 2014 provide a basis for sustainable management of wetlands in the Kenyan coast. Merry meet, fledgling. Welcome in a new life, a new world, and a new you. Welcome to the House of Night! This might seem like a scary time, Fledgling, but never fear!
